 - i. UA’s Faculty Senate unanimously passed the following statement in regards to the Academic Affairs’ cabinet Open Educational Resources Initiative:
 - ii. “The cost of a college education has risen drastically over the past few decades, with the cost of textbooks outpacing many other costs. The adoption of Open Educational Resources is one way that UA faculty can mitigate the high cost of textbooks. The University of Alabama Faculty Senate supports the efforts of the Student Government Association in their initiative to seek reliable, low-cost alternatives to expensive textbooks.”
 - iii. Moving forward, the Academic Affairs cabinet plans to unite the forces of the Faculty Senate, SGA, and UA Libraries to recruit 3-4 faculty members to pilot their courses using open access textbooks. This is a monumental step in the right direction to reduce the cost of textbooks for students.
